Maybe He Will Go With It.

"Dorr's Rebellion."
From 1663 the people of Rhode Island had lived under a charter granted by Charles II, according to which only those owning a certain amount of property could vote. A desire to change this provision arose and in 1841 two parties were in the field, the "Suffrage" and the "Law and Order." Each party determined to control affairs. Each elected its own state officers. Thomas W. Dorr was chosen governor by the "Suffrage" party. He took possession of the state arsenal. The militia was called and he was forced to flee. In a second attempt the party was downed by United States troops and Dorr was arrested, convicted of treason and sentenced to life imprisonment, but soon was pardoned. This was Dorr's rebellion. A free constitution was adopted by the people while Dorr was imprisoned.

Unusual Offer To Our Readers

For a limited time, and subject to withdrawal after 30 days, the well-known publishing house of the J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia, founded in 1792, offers to the readers of this paper a 12 months' subscription to "Lippincott's Magazine," a 12 year subscription to the Kentuckian, both for $3.00. This is the price of a twelve months' subscription to "Lippincott's" alone. Additional to obtaining every issue of this paper for a year, our readers will receive in "Lippincott's" 12 great complete novels by popular authors, 105 short stories, crisp, entertaining, original, 45 timely articles from the pens of masters, and each month some excellent poems with the right sentiment, and "Walnuts and Wine," the most popular humor section in America. To obtain this extraordinary offer prompt action is necessary. Remit to J. B. Lippincott Company, Washington Square, Philadelphia, Pa.

Delights of Camel Riding.
It was my first experience of camel riding, and therefore interesting. It is not altogether charming. The saddles used in this country are formed of large pads, one in front and one behind the hump. The driver climbs into place in front, with a huge peaked pad to keep him from falling off when the camel rises. Then the passenger mounts behind the hump, and the camel is with difficulty persuaded to rise. This he does hind-quarters first, and the passenger finds himself thrust up in midair as if on a tower. The huge pad offers no possible support, and he can scarcely overcome his desire to prevent a fall by putting his feet on the driver's shoulders. That worthy, however, soon comes up to join him, and the expedition starts. The first sensation is of being astride a table, and as the miles go by the table increases alarmingly in width, and the tyro on the back seat begins to despair of ever getting his legs acquainted again.—Wide Awake Magazine.

Not the Thing.
"Here's the sea captain we met the other day passed us without so much as a nod. Does he not know that good manners compel at least a bow when he meets us?" "You couldn't persuade a sailor, sir, that a bow is a stern necessity."

8 PER CENT. INVESTMENTS

For persons having money to invest we can get 8 per cent. secured by first mortgage on Christian county farm lands. This beats 3 per cent. nearly three to one, and just as well secured.

LONDON'S OLDEST IRISH RELIC

History of Stone in Coronation Chair Can Be Traced Back for Many Centuries.

The oldest Irish historical relic in London is the stone believed to be the "Lia Fail" in the coronation chair in Westminster abbey, according to the Irish World. It will be remembered that it was most certainly the coronation stone of the old Scottish kings, and it has been in the abbey since Edward I brought it from Scone, where King Kenneth, in the ninth century, transferred it from Argyllshire. It had been then used as a coronation stone since Fergus, the son of Eric, brought it first from Ireland, and the tradition was that it had been the coronation stone of the Irish kings on the hill of Tara.

Old legend, indeed, gave the coronation stone a greater antiquity and declared it to be the very stone which formed "Jacob's pillow." The authentic record of the stone is, however, perfect to the days when it was first taken from Ireland. It is spoken of as being in Westminster abbey, but it isn't. Like other irreplaceable objects, art treasures and historic relics, it has been removed, together with the chair which it has enriched, to a place of safety from Zeppelin bombs. It will be remembered that tradition says that where the stone is the ruling power of the Scot, that is the Irish, will be found.

John Denver, in his "Old Rebel," tells an amusing story of a simple-minded Fenian who conceived the idea of carrying off the stone from the abbey to Ireland and the settling of the whole "Irish question" at a stroke.

BEHIND THE SCENES

"What's the trouble?"
"I can't keep my people down to their own lines of work. The prima donnas will kick and the ballet won't."

TREES AS WINDMILLS.

A growing eucalyptus, partly cleared of leaves and branches, has been used as a windmill tower by a California farmer. In search of good running water, the farmer found a spring underneath a grove of eucalyptus trees. It was found that in order to erect a windmill standard over the spring it would be necessary to sacrifice the beautiful trees. Finally solving the problem of building the windmill without destroying the trees, he mounted the fan on one of the central trees. Clearing away much of the foliage on the nearest trees, he ran braces to the windmill, and secured a machine which has given him entire satisfaction.—Popular Science Monthly.

ATROCIOUS DECORATION.

"Do you know much about these Turkish atrocities?"
"Comparatively little," answered the man of esthetic tastes. "In fact, there is only one Turkish atrocity that I am familiar with."
"Yes?"
"It's a room in Mr. Grabco's new house."

UNLIMITED QUANTITIES.

"Did mother Eve really dress in leaves?"
"So we are told, my child."
"What a lot of old clothes she must have had to give away in the fall."

THE WAY OF IT.

She—Why is it that wives were never allowed to make their wills?
He—Didn't have to. All I ever knew had 'em ready made.

CLIMATE SUFFERER.

"Do you suffer from the climate?"
"Yes. I know a man from California who refuses to talk about any."
